Derive pleasure from planning – the process of planning for the trip is as much a part of the journey as the trip itself.

Start their research by getting a sense of the place, often from objective and editorial sources.

Rely less on social media for influence and inspiration.

Begin building an overall picture of the place led by bigger traditional tourist activities.

Need assurance there are many smaller experiences nearby that offer depth, learning and lots to uncover.

These smaller complementary activities play a very important role in determining if a destination is worth visiting.

"Plan for spontaneity," leaving time in their schedule for unplanned encounters and activities.

Plan with flexibility, not rigidity.

A list of Things to Do is a great starting point for their own research, not because it tells them exactly what to do, but because it shows the breadth and depth that they require.

Likely to consider budget hotel chains (2-3 star), camping trips, and national park holidays.

Much more likely to use vacation rental sites (Airbnb, VRBO).

Top sites for planning and purchase include TripAdvisor, Expedia, Airbnb, Booking.com, Kayak.

Constantly grazing for information both before and during a trip, seeking local-insider information and recommendations.

Look for organic interactions with locals to flavour and help inform their activities.

PLANNERS VS TRAVELLERS

- Planners represent a more focused and higher-value audience. They influence the travel of the entire travelling party and present a greater opportunity to move people around the province.
- Marketing to Planners means providing inspiration and informational content they can share with their travel group. Inspiration is vital whether a traveller is regional or long-haul.
- ▶ The larger the group travelling together, the less distinct the differences are between Curious Adventurers and Hotspot Hunters.

MEDIA HABITS

Thinking about the personal motivations, desires and media habits of your audience can allow you to stand out from your competitors and more effectively connect. Use the below insights to guide your media tactics and supporting creative development to drive higher engagement with your audience.

▶ Heavy social media users, but don't post regularly. Avid listeners of podcasts and music streaming sites, and regular blog readers. Actively avoid advertising on social.

▶ They trust local news sources including CTV and Global networks. For international news they look to sites with global reach such as MSN.

▶ Are interested in learning more deeply about destinations and activities. They tend to spend longer reading informational content but are pickier about which ads they engage with.

Everywhere has got something to see.
